WILL RUN OFFICE LIKE A BUSINESS

County Clerk-Elect Hopes to Make Cost Less and Efficiency Greater.

Preparations for turning over the office of county clerk-elect, Samuel G. Dye, to the county clerk-elect, have been completed, and Mr. Dye will assume the duties of the office next Friday, and it is expected that within a few months some radical changes will be made in the line-up of the office force.

Any changes that will be made will likely be done with a view of increasing the efficiency of the force and with a view of lessening the expense of the office. According to the auditor's report filed with the board of county commissioners last Monday, the expense of conducting the clerk's office for the past year has been $11,000, which is said to be greater than in any previous year.

Mr. Dye will take the term of office with virtually the same force as are now working under Mr. Mattson. John V. Bluth, former clerk of the Weber Stake Church association, who served as chief deputy under former County Clerk Charles R. Hollingsworth, will be made chief deputy and will take up the duties of this position on the first of the year.

At the same time that Mr. Bluth assumes the duties of the chief clerkship, H. G. Warner, who was named as an assistant clerk at the time C. O. DeWolf resigned from the clerk's office, and Miss Shepherd, another extra clerk, will be expected to make changes in the office within a few months. Mr. Dye, it is said, has in mind the placing of the office on a strict business basis, engaging his deputies because of their qualifications for the positions rather than for influence they may exert in politics. He has spent some weeks in checking up on the work of the office and has fully acquainted himself with the duties of each clerk, and as a result is in a good position to determine what the inauguration of a new system would mean, both for the clerk and for the good service and reducing the expense of the office.

Mayor Brewer and a number of others are arranging for a rabbit hunt, to take place at Blue Creek next Wednesday. A special train will leave Ogden at 7:30 in the morning.

The Stomach Does Not Cause Dyspepsia

Neither Will It Cure It Because the Lack of Gastric Juices Prohibit Relief.

The stomach is a strong, powerful organ, which is composed of muscles of great strength. It is filled during digestion with gastric juices which, when the stomach, extending and compressing the food, dissolve it and separate the nourishment from the waste matter. If, however, these gastric juices are lacking, the stomach is not capable of digesting its food because it has not the tools with which to work successfully.

The gastric juices when in a perfect state do away with all foul odors, fermentation and decay, reduce the food to a dissolved mass and the stomach then presses it into the intestines, where another form of digestion takes place. The intestines take from this mass of food all that is nourishing and give it to the blood. The waste matter is thrown from the system.

If, instead of nourishment, the intestines receive impure deposits combined with a poisonous and imperfect gastric juice, it can be readily seen that they must turn such imperfect nourishment into the blood. The blood then being unable to give each part of the body that which it requires, becomes impoverished and disease is spread broadcast.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets correct such a condition at once. If the gastric juices are lacking and imperfect these tablets do their work just the same. They build up the elements in the juice which are lacking and remove those elements which cause disturbance.

Meat, grains, fluids, vegetables and delicacies, in fact, each portion of a large meal, have been placed in a glass vial and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been digested them to a perfect fluid just as a healthy stomach would do.

A large, complex, hearty meal holds no terrors for a dyspeptic if Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used. Abnormal eating, indigestion, rich foods cause ill effects to the stomach, but when Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used one may eat when and what one will without danger of dyspepsia or discomfort.

Forty thousand physicians endorse and prescribe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and every druggist carries them in stock, price 25c. Send us your name and address and we will send you at once by mail a sample package free. Address, F. A. Stuart & Co., 139 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

CUNNINGHAM IS TRAINMASTER

Depot Master Goes to Pocatello to Fill More Important Position.

George J. Cunningham, for more than two years depot master at the Ogden Union depot, has been appointed trainmaster for the Oregon Short Line with headquarters at Pocatello. He will assume the duties of his new position immediately after the first of the year. Mr. Cunningham is one of the best known and capable railroad men in the country and his appointment comes as a reward for strict attention to the duties of his position.

Mr. Cunningham has been appointed to a new one. Prior to the financial stringency more than a year ago the position of assistant superintendent at Pocatello, the duties of which were identical with those of trainmaster, was abolished, and has remained so up to the present time. The increase in business of the Short Line has been such that the duties falling upon the superintendent have been such that one person could properly attend to. For this reason it was decided by the management to create the office of trainmaster and the appointment of Mr. Cunningham agreed upon. He will have direct supervision over the Pocatello yards and that portion of the line between Pocatello and Glens Ferry, together with the several branches in that territory.

Mr. Cunningham began his railroad career as a messenger for the Burlington, and gradually worked his way up through the train service to the top. For several years he was a passenger conductor for the Northern Pacific, then went with the Rio Grande as yardmaster at Cheyenne, and in 1890 was appointed yardmaster at Ogden. Two years ago he was appointed depot master to succeed John Keating, and in that position he has served up to the present time.

Mr. Cunningham's experience made him a valuable man as depot master. During the time he worked in the train service he served with and under many of the best men in the railroad business, and he stands at the front in the ranks of the most prominent railroad men of the country. His promotion will be greeted favorably by all those who know him. At the same time his removal from Ogden will be regretted.

Samuel Fowler, for many years night depot master here, will be placed in charge of the Ogden depot in place of Mr. Cunningham, for the present. It is not known whether or not his appointment will be permanent.

DEATH CAUSES SUSPICION

Police Investigating the Passing of Mrs. Corinne Lawrence, Found Dead in Bed.

Mrs. Corinne Lawrence, colored, residing with her husband, Richard Lawrence, at 2620 Wall avenue, was found dead in bed yesterday morning. The circumstances surrounding the case are said to be suspicious, and the man has been placed in custody pending an inquest, which will likely be held Monday.

There were certain marks on the body when it was found, and persons residing in the same neighborhood assert that they heard the couple quarreling at a late hour the night before. When the case was called to the attention of County Attorney N. J. Harney, he refused to permit the body to be embalmed. Later, a coroner's jury, consisting of James Cassin, George A. Whittever and J. P. Jensen, was empaneled and viewed the body. Dr. Gordon also made an examination of the body, but refused to say what the result of it was. Upon this report will depend the holding of an autopsy.

According to what Lawrence told the officers, he left his home early Christmas afternoon and did not see his wife again until late that night, when she was brought home by a man and a woman. He said it was her birthday and that a crowd had been up town drinking and that his wife was put to bed by the woman who aided in bringing her home. Early yesterday morning, Lawrence states, he awoke and, reaching over, touched his wife's face. Finding it cold, he got up and hastened to a doctor. Dr. H. R. Forbes responded and found the woman dead. Lawrence denied that he had quarreled with his wife.

Other inmates in the house, according to the police, tell of hearing a violent quarrel in the Lawrence apartments and that such exclamations as "My God, don't kill me," etc., were heard coming from the room during the night. It is believed, however, that these reports may be exaggerated.

"THREE YEARS," SAID JUDGE

"Thanks," Said Davis, Who Stole a Horse and Expected Severe Penalty.

William Davis, who some days ago confessed to a charge of embezzlement, was yesterday sentenced by Judge J. A. Howell to three years in the state prison. Davis some months ago stole a horse belonging to his employer. He traded the animal off for another horse and so. Davis then proceeded to get drunk on the 19th. He was shrewd enough to take the horse he traded for to a livery stable, where he paid for its feed, leaving the animal with its saddle on in order that he could make a quick get-away in case of necessity. He was arrested, however, before he could get back to the stable. Davis was sentenced, and in response to a question by the court, Davis admitted he had served two years on a similar charge in Arizona.

When the court pronounced sentence, Davis, with tears in his eyes, said, "Thank you, judge."

He apparently expected a much heavier sentence.

BRADFORD MAY BE NAMED

Weber Stake Academy Teacher Likely to Be Superintendent of Schools.

The county board of education yesterday responded until next week the naming of a superintendent of schools, to succeed Thomas E. McKay, who leaves shortly to assume charge of the Weber Stake Academy. It is understood that Sylvester D. Bradford, of the department of education of the Weber Stake academy, will be selected for the position. Mr. Bradford has been with the Weber Stake academy for seven years, and is considered one of the ablest members of the faculty of that institution. If selected, he will be chosen from a list of five, three of whom made applications for the position. It is said that former Superintendent W. N. Peterson, who succeeded Thomas E. McKay, declined to have his name considered for the position. He is now principal of an Ogden City school. Those who applied for the position of superintendent are James R. Beus, Henry Barker Jr., and H. E. Arnold. Mr. Beus has not been connected with the schools for some time. Mr. Barker is principal of an Ogden school, and Mr. Arnold is a newspaper man employed here. It is not known whether or not Mr. Bradford will accept the position.

FOR NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

Ground Broken and Building Will Be Up by Summer.

Ground for the new $100,000 high school at Twenty-fifth street and Monroe avenue was broken yesterday morning by a force of men in the employ of the Eccles Lumber company, which was awarded the contract for the erection of the new structure. With all possible speed the building, which is to be one of the most modern in the country, will be rushed to completion. The contract calls for the completion of the building in time for occupancy during the school year of 1909-10.

Immense Coal Deposits Found on Property Being Worked by the Consolidated Fuel Co.

New Southern Utah Railroad, Now Being Built Through Miller Creek Canyon, Will Haul Product of Mines to the Market.

Main Entry to the Mine Has Been Opened 500 Feet, Air Course a Corresponding Distance.

Cross-Cuts Made on Seventeen Foot Vein—Other Veins Prospected.

Development Work on North Side of Canyon Reveals Veins in Duplicate.

With the early spring, coal shipments will probably be begun from a new and apparently inexhaustible coal territory by the Consolidated Fuel company, a corporation formed recently to mine coal from the southern Utah coal fields. This company has been doing development work on its property quietly for months, and it has now reached a stage where shipments will be made soon. Twenty miles of railroad are being constructed on which to carry the coal to a point of intersection with other railroads, and the shipments will be begun as soon as this railroad is completed.

The Consolidated Fuel company owns 1,500 acres of coal lands in Miller Creek canyon, twenty miles southwest of Price, Utah. This land contains six distinct veins of coal, five and one-half to thirty feet in thickness. Surrounding this land there are innumerable springs supplying the camp with more than sufficient water for all camp purposes. This land is covered with saw timber, which will furnish enough lumber for all the needs of the coal camp.

The development work has been progressing rapidly, and the results of this working have surprised even the most sanguine of the promoters of the new enterprise. On the south side of the canyon the main entry is opened 500 feet, with the air course the same distance. Necessary cross-cuts have been made as far as the work has progressed. This work has all been done on the seventeen-foot vein. Two other openings have been made on two other veins above this one. One of these veins is five and one-half feet and the other seven feet in thickness.

These openings have all been made on the north side of the canyon. On the north side of the canyon these veins are duplicated. Openings have been made 100 feet into the three veins on the north side of the canyon, and enough development work has been done to convince the workers that the coal on the north side in the veins is identical with that on the south side.

The work being done is in the middle fork of the canyon. The veins are, however, continued in the south fork of the canyon, and on these veins there has been enough development work done to assure the officers of the company that there is an apparently limitless supply of coal in the two canyons in which the property of the company is located.

The company is installing machinery in the mines at present, and as soon as the railroad into the mines is completed the coal will be mined and shipped as rapidly as possible. A complete water works system is being installed on the property. From the headwaters of the springs in the neighborhood pipe lines conduct the water to a large tank at one of the highest points on the property. From this tank will come the water supply of the new coal camp.

Another of the improvements being made by the company is the building of a large sawmill, which will cut the lumber for the building of boarding houses, the tie pile in the canyon and culverts and ties for the railroad.

The Southern Utah Railroad company, organized by the Consolidated Fuel company as a means of transportation from the mines to Price, is constructing its road twenty miles through the canyon to the coal mines. The roadbed has been graded for seven miles of this distance, including the yards. The contract has been let for the remainder of the grading, and by the first of February the grade will have been completed. At that time the laying of the ties and steel will be commenced. The road is incorporated as a common carrier and will open up a valuable section of country tributary to Price.

Tracks will be built from the opening of the mine up-grade instead of down-grade. The ore cars will take the coal up-grade from the mines and then lower it 1,100 feet into a tippie in the canyon, from which it will be loaded on coal cars and carried over the main tracks to Price. The output of the mines, it is believed, will be limited only by the number of men that can be employed in the mines and the capacity of the trains that carry out the coal.

J. H. R. Franklin, the well known lawyer, is president of the company. B. F. Bauer of the Salt Lake Hardware company is vice president; F. W. Francis of Callaway, Hook & Francis is treasurer; J. R. Schrock, secretary; A. A. Street, manager, and Robert Howard, superintendent. The offices of the company are at 404-5 Judge building. The work of developing the mines, constructing a railroad and building a new coal camp in Miller Creek canyon is proceeding as rapidly as possible. By next summer the stockholders in the company hope that the Hawatha block coal of the Consolidated Fuel company will be on the market.
